Guides students thro Continues sional Researcity Secretary in the Continues sial aid. Prepared by the

- The basics: getting started
- Student aid and where it comes from
- Targeted aid for specific groups
- Repaying your loans

The basics: getting started

TOP

- Start gathering information early.
- Free information is readily available from:

High school counselors
College and career school financial aid offices (where you plan to attend)
Local and college libraries
Student Aid on the Web (U.S. Department of Education)

Other Internet sites (search terms student financial aid OR assistance)

- Ask questions of counselors: you may have exceptional circumstances that affect your eligibility.
 - Keep copies of all forms and correspondence: you must reapply for aid each year.
 - Parents of students: save money long before your child attends college.

FinAid: for Parents
College Savings Plan Network (state "Section 529" plans)
Tax incentives for higher education expenses

- Good overviews:

Cash for College
FinAid: The Smart Student Guide to Financial Aid
Financial Aid: You Can Afford It
Looking for Student Aid
Mapping Your Future
Paying for College

- Beware of scholarship scams -- don't pay for free information!

Department of Education Federal Trade Commission

Student aid and where it comes from

TOP

Basic assistance categories:

- Financial need-based

Remember that students and their parents are responsible for paying what they canfinancial aid is a supplement, not a substitute, for family resources.

- Non need-based

Factors include academic excellence, ethnic background, or organization membership. Corporations may also offer assistance to employees and children.

Federal Student Aid:

- Provides nearly 70% of student aid under Loans, Grants and Work/study programs.
- Available to all need-based applicants; some loans and competitive scholarships for non need-based.
 - Free information from the U.S. Department of Education:
 - Student Aid on the Web
 - Financial Aid Resource Publications
- Loans are the most common federal aid and must be repaid when you graduate or leave college.
 - Stafford Loans (FFELs and Direct Loans) include:

- Federal Family Education Loans (FFEL) from private lenders, such as banks and credit unions, guaranteed by the federal government.
 - Federal PLUS Loans parental loans, not need-based.
 - Perkins Loans for the most needy undergraduates; through participating schools.
 - Scholarships/grants are mostly need-based and require no repayment:
 - Pell Grants
 - Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (FSEOG)
- Other grants, scholarships, and fellowships, mostly graduate level: search the Catalo g of Federal Domestic Assistance

(CFDA) by

Beneficiary

, such as "Student or Trainee" or "Graduate Student".

- "Congressional" scholarships:
- Named for Member of Congress or other prominent individual (such as Byrd Honors Scholarships, Fulbright fellowships)
 - Merit-based and highly competitive
 - Members of Congress do not play a role in selecting recipients
 - Work study programs allow you to earn money while in school:
 - Federal Work Study Program : college campus jobs
 - Student Educational Employment : jobs with the federal government
 - For questions not covered by the Department of Education website, call the Federal

Student Aid Information Center

at 1-800-433-3243.

States offer residents a variety of scholarships, loans, and tuition exemptions.

- Check with your State Higher Education Agency and State Guarantee Agency.
- Consider prepaid tuition and college savings ("Section 529") plans: College Savings Plans Network

- Search your Internet browser under terms such as student financial aid or assistance A ND

your state

Colleges and universities provide some 20% of aid, most need-based. Check university websites and the institution's financial aid office when you apply for admission.

Private foundations, corporations, and organizations offer scholarships or grants:

College Board Scholarship Search
FastWeb
Grants for Individuals

Targeted aid for special groups

TOP

- Grants for Minorities: Asians, Blacks, Hispanics, Latinos, Native Americans, and Other Ethnic Groups
 - African Americans: For Students: Scholarships
 - Disabled students: Financial Aid for Students with Disabilities
 - Foreign students: Financial Aid for International Students
 - Hispanic Americans: Scholarships
 - Law school students Financial Aid for Law School
 - Medical students: Association of American Medical Colleges
 - Native Americans: American Indian College Fund
 - Study abroad (for U.S. and non-U.S. citizens): International Financial Aid
 - Veterans: Education Benefits

Interested in public service?

Federal assistance programs seek to encourage people to work in geographic areas or professions where there's a particular need (such as doctors in underserved areas); encourage underrepresented groups to enter a particular profession; and provide aid in exchange for services provided (such as military service).

- AmeriCorps Education Award

Volunteers who complete one year of service receive an education award for current higher education expenses or to repay student loans.

Army Tuition Assistance
 Additional benefits for Army personnel.

- Bureau of Health Professions

Scholarships and loans to needy health profession students from disadvantaged backgrounds.

- e-Scholar

Scholarships, grants, fellowships, internships, and cooperative education with federal agencies.

- Indian Health Service

Scholarships for American Indian/Alaskan Native health profession students and loan repayment for persons working in IHS facilities.

- Military academies:

U.S. Air Force Academy

U.S. Coast Guard Academy

U.S. Merchant Marine Academy

U.S. Military Academy

U.S. Naval Academy

- National Health Service Corps

Scholarships and loan repayment for health profession students who agree to work in underserved areas.

- Nursing Scholarships

Offered in exchange for two years of service in areas with critical nursing shortages.

- Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC):

For students who want to be commissioned as officers after graduating from college.

U.S. Air Force ROTC

U.S. Army ROTC

U.S. Navy ROTC

Aid for private K-12 education: No direct federal assistance, check with schools themselves:

- Coverdell Education Savings Accounts: for elementary and secondary school expenses as well as higher education.

Repaying your loans

TOP

After college, the federal government has ways to help you repay your loans.

- Eligibility depends upon the type of loan, when it was made, and whether it's in default. Check with your loan officer to find out if you qualify.
- Loan Consolidation: combine your federal loans into a single loan with one monthly payment.
 - Sometimes loans may be canceled in exchange for public service.

Teachers: Cancellation/Deferment Options

Health professions: National Health Service Corps

Law school graduates: State Loan Repayment/Forgiveness Programs Medical school graduates: Loan Repayment/Forgiveness Programs

- Federal employees: Federal Student Loan Repayment Program

- If you are having problems with your loan and all other approaches fail, contact the Department of Education's Office of the Ombudsman.

Merete F. Gerli x77109